This manufacturer of building products such as custom windows, entry doors, glass blocks and vinyl siding, values the quality construction and ease of use of the Better Pack 555eS. Switching to reinforced water-activated tape also improved the strength and professional appearance of the large, heavy, custom printed packages they ship.

“For starters, [the Better Pack 555eS is] a great machine because it’s super simple to use, understand and maintain. When you open the cover, right away you see quality parts inside. You can tell immediately after using the 555eS and reading the manual that there’s no learning curve by engineering in this product. All the moving parts and information are clear and thought out. The 555eS is very impressive. I have been using it for several weeks and I’m very satisfied. I always like to keep spare parts around for “just in case” situations and was very glad that they were available.

One reason why I chose your machine to seal up my custom printed door carton: the result is a super clean look to my finished product. I manufacture entry doors and I spent money on a logo printed box. I previously used [plastic] packaging tape all over the place to seal up the box. Now, with my new 555eS, the sealed box looks neat and orderly. I’m using the reinforced tape, which gives me the security that it won’t fall apart when transporting the doors by truck. I now receive compliments every day on the packaging. I feel it’s set a new standard to a very important cosmetic appearance with the end user. Using the 555eS on the carton is the same a professional boxing referee in a boxing match. He’s there to do a very important job without being seen.”
